

Summary

1 minute

Managing and working with data is a specialist skill that requires knowledge of multiple technologies. Most organizations define job roles for the various tasks responsible for managing data.

In this module you've learned how to:

- Identify common data professional roles
- Identify common cloud services used by data professionals

Next steps

Now that you've learned about professional data roles and the services they use, consider learning more about data-related workloads on Microsoft Azure by pursuing a Microsoft certification in Azure Data Fundamentals.
